

Press Release

Documation nominated in FIVE categories - UKOUG Partner Awards!

2nd September 2008: Documation have been nominated for no less than five UK Oracle User Group (UKOUG) Partner Awards. The awards, which recognise successful partner relationships with Oracle, will be presented at a ceremony at Claridge's London, on 16th October 2008.

Documation's five nominations are for UKOUG Applications, Technology, JD Edwards, PeopleSoft and Cost Effective Partner of the Year. The award winners will also be recognised at the annual UKOUG Conference and Exhibition, an event that Documation will be attending as an exhibitor.

Oracle Partner Development Manager, Dan Shonfeld had this to say about the nominations:

"Documation consistently provide excellent service and support to their Oracle based customers. The integration between their solutions and the Oracle systems is fantastic; this is backed up in their position of being one of only 9 ISV's in the UK with Certified Partner status. It comes as no surprise that they have been so well recognised in the UKOUG Partner Awards."

Documation regularly exhibit at UKOUG Special Interest Groups throughout the year, as well as working closely with Oracle in providing joint events such as webinars and seminars. Andy Watters, Channel Manager for Documation explains the importance of the relationship: "The decision to work so closely with Oracle is central to Documation's commercial strategy; we have invested a considerable amount of resource to ensure that we offer Oracle users a document management solution that is both sophisticated and comprehensive. The strategy is proving to be a success; our customers consistently report that they are really pleased with the high level of Oracle integration provided by our solutions and they praise our level of expertise and experience."
